ADVANCEMENT OF AGRICULTURE AND THE ARTS-MR. ELLSWORTH'S REPORT. In the absence of any Home Department of our National Bureau of statistics, the it has not, as printed, been laid on the taobtained some of the first sheets from which we copy so much of the Report itself as relates to Scientific and Agricultural advances during the past year. These are but indicated in the extracts which follow, full accounts of them being given in the several papers which form the bulky Appendix

Sectro-Magnetic Telegraph deserves a age, the Electro-Magnetic Telegraph deserves a conspicuous place. Destined as it is to change as well as hasten transmission of intelligence, and so essentially to affect the welfare of society, all that concerns its further developments will be hailed

"There is much to console the husbandman in the reduction of the cost of the necessaries of life the reduction of the cost o in a second; nor that the earth would suffice talf of the current of communication; nor currents of electricity from opposite poles g each other. Such are obstructions; they are passed without any meture or any conductor through the water!!! The science of agriculture has now become dy, and much greater improvement may be ted. Worn-out lands that have been, as it abandoned, are now being reclaimed, under tion of chemical principles. It without the learned agriculturists in Europe are translated into the English language—thus pouring a bedy of new light upon the path of the husbandman. Some exlight upon the path of the husbandman. Some ex-tracts from the celebrated Von Thaer's Principles of Agriculture will be found in one of the appea-dixes to the agricultural report. They evince the deep research and patient investigation of that destinguished philanthropist. Little is accomplished in any science without perseverance. How many bright anticipations have been blasted by a single ous experiment! Without making allow-ordinary casualties or unforeseen occur-now many efforts to improve husbandry by of seeds has failed! All has been abanselection of seeds has failed! All has been abandoned, because the first experiment has not been crowned with success—forgetting that seeds, like animals, must be acclimated, and require certain food not found in every soil. The truth of this general remark may be illustrated by a recent attempt to solve the difficulty in granulating the syrup of corn stalks. Scientific gentlemen at first pronounced the sugar from corn stalk to be grape pronounced the sugar from corn stalk to be grape sugar only, and hence crystallization could hardly be expected. Much disappointed in the result, I transmitted to Boston some of the sugar made by Mr. Webb, of Delaware, and requested another analysis. The second analysis was satirally conrom corn stalk to analysis. The second analysis was entirely successful, proving the sugar from corn stalk to be equal to the best Muscovado sugar.

equal to the best Muscovado sugar.

"In reviewing this subject, it appears that the juice of corn stalk cut too early will not granulate; and this was the cause of the first failure.

"There is every reason to believe, that all difficulties in making good sugar from this vegetable will be removed, while the reports of this year show the quantity of saccharine matter sufficient to class the crop among the best for profit.

"To Dr. Juckson we are also indebted for an analysis of several grains. The superiority of one kind of Indian corn over another is surprisingly manifest. One is filled with oil, the other has no trace of it; hence the superiority of the former for fattening animals. Some graius contain a large quantity of phosphate, (such as beans, &c.;) and hence their consumption tends greatly to increase the bones of animals. Dyspeptics will learn from this why some meal (that which contains oil) is so difficult of digestion. For further remarks on this subject, with illustrations, see appendix No. 6 to ult of digestion. For further remarks on this ct, with illustrations, see appendix No. 6 to the agricultural report.

"A description of a new mode of fencing, and also a plan of erecting houses of unburnt brick, has occasioned more inquiries than I could possibly answer. Improvements have been made, both on the dicher and in the construction of these buildings; and I have thought it expedient to insert in this report a sketch of a building made of this material, as well as improvement made in machinery for excevation, and forming living posts on the embankment, as the most satisfactory mode of machinery for excevation, and forming living posts on the embankment, as the most satisfactory mode of machinery for excevation, and forming living posts on the embankment, as the most satisfactory mode of machinery for excevation, and forming living posts on the embankment, as the most satisfactory mode of the embankment of the satisfactory mode of the embankment of the

seach of every farmer.

"The letter from Mr. Verdine Ellsworth shows what can be done by deep ploughing. By superior culture, his land yielded, this year, over 121 busheds of shelled corn per acre. His timothy meadows rielded 3½ tons per acre. His timothy meadows rielded 3½ tons per acre. His timothy meadows rielded 3½ tons per acre. His statement is full of taxon and the statement is full of the form of the company that he had done all the law required—and the driver are delaring that all was ready, the party left the taxons in pulverized soil. gress from 20,000 to 30,000 packages of seeds, embracing many that are highly valuable for garden and field culture. If the distribution of seeds is a matter of interest or advantage, I beg, respectfully, to suggest how the benefit might be much increased. By a circular issued from the Navy Department, the Navy is instructed to bring to this country seeds that may be found, and that are deemed useful; but this order is inefficacious here. deemed useful; but this order is inefficacious, be-cause there are no funds to defray the trifling ex-penses of packing and shipping them. Seeds are offered, sometimes gratuitously, in distant parts of the world; at others, for a small sum. The boxing and porterage require some expense; and however small this may be in a single instance, in the aggregate it amounts to a considerable sum. of these expenses are allowed by the Navy Department, and hence none are incurred. It is certainly to be regretted that so many fine opportunity ies for procuring seeds and plant should be lost; and yet the department which refuses to allow the claims mentioned must do it, if at all, without auclaims mentioned most do it, if at all, without authority. To meet the emergency, it is suggested that the annual appropriation made for egricultural statistics and other purposes should be increased $1,000; and then the Commussioner of Patents, in conjunction with the Navy Department, could do much to advance national industry; and if there is any appropriation which could gratify the agricultural community, it would be this. I am happy to

"The Hessian fly still continues a dreadful foe to the agriculturists. Hoping to throw some light upon this subject, I have obtained a communication from one of the most scientific gentlemen in this country, who has made the study of this insect the object of microscopic investigation for years. The origin, progress, and changes of this fly cannot fail to interest; and it is confidently hoped, that when its birth, its constitution, and its home, are found, it can be attacked with more certainty of destruction.

"There is much to encourage the artist and the husbandman. The latter may feel momentarily depressed by the low price of crops, but he is cherred by the reflection that he is far better off than those in professions proverbially crowded. The cultivator of the soil is, in the fullest sense, the most independent. He raises enough to eat, and can clothe himself; having a surplus to exchange, if he cannot sell. How much better for the young man of this country to aspire to the enviable rank of a scientific and successful agriculturist, than to grasp at the shadowy honors that are momentarily cast around the brows of political combatants.

facilities in production, whether in manufactures or agriculture; and, if we are to compete with the world at large, we must readily embrace the offer of gonius and skill; we must yield to competitors equal fertility of soil, and win the race by superior industry and intelligence.

"There is, however, a dark cloud which lowers over the Republic. The incubus debt has lost its terrors, and obligation carries with it little self-reproach. Past experience is disregarded. The importation of goods into the United States during the last year will equal one hundred and fifty millions of dollars. Happily for citizens of this country, a portion of the goods imported have been sent on consignment to be sold for the benefit of foreign manufacturers; and hence they must share in the

"Has not the time arrived for the South and the North to commence retrenchment and practise more rigid economy! The wheel of fortune will more rigid economy! The wheel of fortune will not turn out prizes, nor can patents be granted for paving debts. These must be verked out in the old-fashioned way; and when the people shall take a sober estimate of life, and moderate their wishes to their circumstances, then, and not till then, will they find permanent relief.

"All which is respectfully submitted."

"Among the first inquiries of the political economist is the question, how can the productiveness of the earth be increased? Modern practice answers it easily. Manure and tillage are the instruments employed; either, alone, is comparatively usaless. "Grapes will not grow on thorns, nor figs on thistles;" nor will sour land yield sweet food. The nature of the soil must be changed, and this is effected by draining.

"Intimately connected with draining land, is that of subsoiling; indeed, the last has lately been substituted for the former with good success. The theapness of subsoil ploughs brings them within the teach of every farmer.

The question is no longer asked, "Can Ashma be cared?" It has been satisfactorily settled within the last two months that Folger's Olosonalan will produce a cure quicker than any other remedy in the world, and references can be given to persons in and out of the city, who have experienced its wonderful virtues, who had tried for years all other remedies in vain.

Mr. WILSON, a brick-layer, residing at Hoboken, N. J. had tried every remedy which he could hear of for the relief of Asthma, and had spent more than one hundred dolars in endcavoring to procure help, but in vain. Hecommenced using the Olosonian, January 21st. The first dose he took gave him relief, and two days afterward his wife called to say that the small quantity of his remedy which he had taken had done him more good than any and all the medicine he had ever used in his life.

JONES & HALL'S CHANGEABLE SAFETY LOCK.—

This lock can, at the will of its possessor, be changed so as to make unifore of locks out of one, so that relither the maker nor any other person has any knowledge whatever of the lock.

The subscriber vould respectfully inform the public that he has purchased of his partner, W. a. Hall of Baston, Masshis half in the Patent Right in the above lock. This lock is now owned and will in lature be manufactured only by H. C. JONES, at h. establishment in the city of Newark, N. J. And by this advertisement he would notify all persons not to infringe on his Patent Right. The subscriber has been to a great expense to manufacture and to sell the above lock at much less price, according to the size, than can be bought in the United states. And he would fartner state that his lock has never been picked nor opened without the true key that locked it, as will be seen by the many trials that it has undergone at different times, with a reward of 5500 to any person who would open it fairly; but no one has ever been successful; and it is warranted in all instances not to get out of order while in these, which has been a great annoyance to many who have used locks of different construction.

Also h's Patent Pad Locks for Rallroad purposes, Prisons, Expresses and Custom Houses, which have been generally adopted and give full satisfaction. H. C. JONES,
